Twisting a Rabbit.

The wretched rabbit is first driven into a hollow log or tree or hole, as the case may be. Then the twister cuts and trims a supple gad of suitable length, inserts it into the retreat and pokes about till he feels the rabbit. The gad is then withdrawn, and it's ten to one that a hair or two clinging to the end will prove that the rabbit has been touched. The twister now makes a split in the end of the gad, feels for the prey again, and when the split is in the fur turns the gad steadily in one direction till a firm hold has been taken of the fur. The rabbit is then dragged out and dispatched, if everything works just right. Too frequently things go wrong. A rabbit's skin is very tender, and a rough banded twister may twist off inches of skin and wads of fur before he thinks that he has secured a proper hold. Not seldom the agonized rabbit resists so strongly that the skin is torn off during the pulling process. The whole business savors too much of flaying a beast alive to be worthy of further discussion.

But in one instance the rabbit did not suffer. A clever youth found a hole under a stump and decided to twist the hidden rabbit. The stick took hold in excellent style, the rabbit struggled bravely, but a powerful pull brought it forth with a bounce. It was a very curious rabbit—in fact, the only one on record which wore a long, bushy tail and a black and white coat, and, judging by the odor of it, it must have been in that hole a very long time.—Edward W. Sandys in Outlook.

Reform in Ancient Stuttgart.

The question of the nightly illumination of the old city was always a contested one, and fiercely waged the warfare between the dukes and the town authorities. It was Eberhard Ludwig who finally defied the doughty magistrates and ordered that a number of lanterns should be supplied. The lanterns were provided, but the magistrates would not allow them to be lighted. A hot contest followed between the duke and the chief magistrate. The latter had but one response for all the angry remonstrances of the duke, "When people should be brought into view before the eyes of night thieves, how easy it would be for them to drag their victims to a dark place, plunder and kill them!" Eberhard was obliged to give up his project.

Duke Carl insisted that the streets should be lighted and carried his point, but no sooner had he removed his residence to Ludwigsburg than complete darkness once more nightly settled over the streets of Stuttgart. Iron pillars, to which shallow pans were attached, were stationed at regular intervals along the streets. When, on extraordinary occasions, illumination was allowed, resin and pitch were lighted in these pans, and the flickering flames only added weirdness to the darkness that they were intended to dissipate.

As late as 1770 lanterns hung in the places designated by Duke Carl, but they burned not. The security of the citizens was above all else. "Stuttgart," by Elise J. Allen, in Harper's Magazine.

To One He Writes Legibly.

A well known musician, who writes a very illegible hand, once sent an unusually hopeless scrawl to a friend. The latter studied it a minute, gave it up in despair and then sat down and wrote in reply: "I shall be most happy to dine with you tomorrow at 6. Kindest regards to your wife," etc. In less than half an hour his friend appeared breathless at his door.

"There's some misunderstanding," he said anxiously. "I wrote you a note asking you if you could play the piano part of the trio at Brown's recital, and here you've sent me an acceptance of a dinner invitation, but I didn't invite you to dinner."

"Well," returned the other blandly, "I didn't suppose you'd really sent me an invitation to dinner, but I couldn't read a word of your note, and in that case hereafter I mean always to take it for granted that you're asking me to dine."

For one of his correspondents at least the offender now writes legibly.—Chicago News.

The Treating Habit.

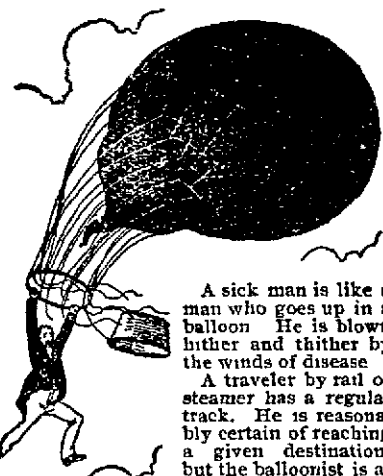

It was Pope Telesphorus, who died before the year 150 A. D., who instituted Christmas as a festival, though for some time it was irregularly held in December, April and May. But for centuries before there had been a feast of Yule among the northern nations, whose great enjoyment was in drinking the wassail bowl or cup. Nothing gave them so much delight as indulgence in "carousing ale," especially at the season of short days, when fighting was ended. It was likewise the custom at all their feasts "for the master of the house to fill a large bowl or pitcher, to drink out of it first himself and then give to him that sat next, and so it went around." This may have been the origin of that popular American custom known as "treating." It is certain that upon our Christian observance of this glorious day have been ingrafted habits taken from rude and barbarous people.—St. Louis Republic.

A Convincing Example.

The other day a south side teacher was discoursing to her pupils about the evils of becoming addicted to slang, when she paused and asked them to give her an example of a slang phrase. The school went into convulsions when a youngster in knee pants yelled promptly, "You're not so hot. There are other babies on the pile."

The teacher did not call for any more examples.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

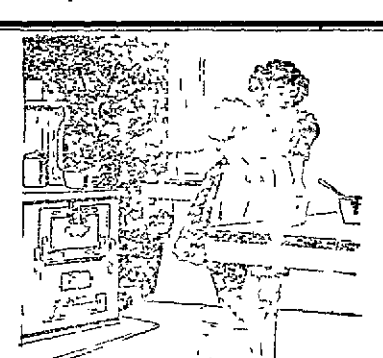

Southern California has a population of about 820,000, comprising 64,000 families, and the railroad mileage is equal to one mile of road to about 40 families. The population is increasing at the rate of from 16,000 to 20,000 families a year.

A sick man is like a man who goes up in a balloon. He is blown higher and higher by the winds of disease.

A traveler by rail or steamer has a regular track. He is reasonably certain of reaching a given destination; but the balloonist is at the mercy of totally uncertain elements. No track, no course, no rudder, no certainty that any breeze may not bring destruction. So with the sick man. His disordered constitution renders every natural operation uncertain. No organ can be depended on to do its normal work. The stomach will not digest food; the liver will not filter bilious poisons from the blood; the kidneys and skin will not excrete the waste. No regular nourishing or purifying process is going on. There is no certainty except the certainty of suffering.

In all dyspeptic, bilious, debilitated conditions, what is needed is to change the abnormal, erratic operations of the system into a natural, regular, straightforward progress in the right direction. Nothing in the world will do this so rapidly and certainly as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It directly regulates the vitalizing functions. It sets the stomach and liver into natural, healthy operation and gives the blood-making glands power to manufacture an abundance of pure, rich blood.

The Trans-Mississippi and International Congress is composed of delegates from every State and Territory West of the Mississippi river. The idea of this exposition originated in that Congress at its session at Omaha in 1893, and the project has become a National enterprise and the National Commission has been organized and is in active service, there being one commissioner for each of the several departments of the Government. Most of the Trans-Mississippi States are well along in the way of gathering exhibits from their respective States and many of them have made liberal appropriations, while others are preparing exhibits through private enterprise.

Vice-President H. R. Maxson of Reno, has made arrangements whereby he can get Nevada exhibits, shipped from any point in the State along the line of the C. P. R. R., to Omaha and return, and he requests all persons who wish the interests of the State advertised, to co-operate with the Exposition County Commissioner of his county, whose name is shown above, and prepare some product of his county and send it to the nearest point on the C. P. R. R. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited, and returned to the same point at the close of the exposition, free of expense to the exhibitor. Full information should accompany everything sent for exhibition. Before sending anything to the line of the railroad a full description should be given to the Exposition Commissioner of the county, who in turn will notify the Vice-President, who will notify him what action to take, otherwise there might be many duplications. Apply to your County Representative for further information, and don't let this opportunity of advertising the resources of Nevada be lost.

NEVADA WAR CLAIMS.

The United States Government is indebted to the State of Nevada to the amount of $404,000, principal and interest, expended in organizing troops for the suppression of Indian wars during the war of the rebellion. The warrants for the money paid out by the Territory of Nevada and the State as successor of the Territory, are in the State archives at the capital. A committee appointed by the United States Senate some years ago made a thorough investigation of the claims and in a voluminous report, in which all the evidence before the committee is printed, recommended the payment of the claims.

The early settlers of Nevada have also claims against the general Government for property stolen or destroyed by the Indians, amounting to many thousands of dollars. Those claims are supported by the sworn statements made before officers authorized to take testimony and these statements have been filed in the proper department at Washington.

At present there is a bill before the United States Senate authorizing the payment of these and similar claims from other western States. Senators Stewart and Jones in behalf of Nevada are endeavoring to get the bill through the Senate and it has been reported favorably from the Committee on Claims by its Chairman, Senator Teller.

The people of Nevada should by every means in their power, support our Senators and Representative in Congress in urging the passage of the bill to pay those old war claims. The State has very nearly reached the limit of its borrowing power under the constitution and $404,000 of just dues from the National Government would enable the State to bridge over the depression which has prevailed since the Government, without the consent of the people, adopted the single gold standard, and which is likely to prevail until silver is remonetized. The money is justly due the State, as it paid out about $120,000 in coin, when greenbacks were at 50 per cent discount, for organizing volunteers, and it has paid the interest on the greater part of that amount to the present day.

Then the people who had their property stolen or destroyed by the Indians are entitled to remuneration for the same. Many of those persons have crossed to the other shore, and those yet living are getting old. They are entitled to what is due them and it should be paid them.

As there is now a probability of an appropriation being made for the payment of those claims, as several States are interested in the passage of the bill, the press of the State should agitate the subject and publish facts from old settlers relative to the manner in which the depredations were committed and the hardships endured by reason of the loss of their cattle, and provisions and the burning of their houses by hostile Indians. The State expenditures are shown by warrants issued by the controller and paid by the Treasurer, volunteers were paid five dollars per month in coin by the State in addition to the $13 a month in greenbacks which they received from the National Government, and the administration, which is intent on paying the bond holders in gold for obligations payable in greenbacks or coin, should not object to paying the State of Nevada the money which it expended in protecting the overland mail route and the lives and property of American citizens from hostile Indians.

POLITICAL SLATES AND CONVENTIONS.

The newspapers of the State, probably owing to a scarcity of more interesting matter, have been amusing themselves and some of their readers by publishing political slates and discussing the merits and demerits of probable candidates. There is no particular harm in the business. It injures no one and the men who are discussed by the various correspondents, are as well known to the public as the correspondents could be, even if they appended their names to the articles which they write.

At the Presidential election in 1896 about 81 per cent of the whole vote of Nevada was cast for William J. Bryan. The men who cast their ballots for Bryan will meet in State Convention or, possibly, in more than one convention. The members of the Silver party who, judging by the returns of previous elections, cast the majority of the Bryan vote, will doubtless have a convention of at least 150 delegates. To these, the people who elect them will delegate authority to frame a platform and nominate candidates for the various offices which are to be filled at the general election next November. Does any person, not bereft of reason, believe for a moment that the convention will be governed in its choice of candidates by the so-called "slates" which are being published in the newspapers? Possibly some of the men mentioned by the slate-makers may be nominated, but it is probable that men who have been wholly ignored by the industrious slate-makers may be the choice of the convention for all the State offices.

A State Convention composed of one hundred and fifty representative citizens will be a very difficult body to manipulate, and it is preposterous to assume that it can be controlled by a half-dozen candidates, however adroit they may be in political maneuvers.

An Improvident Young Man Who Will Always Have a Dollar in His Pocket.

"Queer things happen at funerals," said a clergyman recently who has officiated at many, "and I remember one occasion which impressed me greatly on account of the standing of the family in which it happened, as well as from the peculiar circumstances surrounding the incident—the bestowal of money on a dead man."

The narrator was urged to relate the story, and on the promise that no names would be mentioned he continued:

"It was a funeral at the house of one of my parishioners, and I was greatly surprised when I received notice to attend and conduct the services. I had not heard of any member of the family being ill, nor had I been summoned to the deathbed, but I jumped to the conclusion that it was an old servant who had died."

"It proved to be a bad son—the black sheep of the family—whose shadow had not darkened their doors for years, but who, it was always believed, had been supported at a distance far enough to prevent him from disgracing the family by his misdeeds."

"Now he was brought home dead, and I was expected to give him as little blame and as much praise as was consistent with the dignity of my office and his relation to the family."

"I need not go into that part of the ceremonies, but come to what I consider the real expression of feeling which consecrated the memory of the man as nothing that I said could have done."

"Just before the casket was closed his old mother arose from her seat with the mourners, and, approaching the dead, slipped a silver dollar into his vest pocket."

"Jim never liked to be without money in his pocket," she said, with a low, tremulous voice. "Many's the dollar I've slipped into his pocket unbeknown to him, but he always found it and was thankful. I don't expect he's going to need it now, and maybe he will never know that mother put it there, but somehow I shall feel better if he has it."

"And I felt that the woman who had loved much and forgiven much had preached a sermon of forgiveness and mercy before which I with my platitudes must remain dumb."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Joys of Suburban Life.

"Yes," sighed the suburban resident, "I thought I had shaken off my hoodoo about that last blow came. Now I have figured out that my wisest plan is to just sit around the house and protect such property as I have left."

"When I went out there, it was with a longing to revive the pleasures of life in a country home, such as had made my boyhood so happy. But my expectations were as dismal as my anticipations had been bright. Chicken thieves raided my henery until the last of my choice Cochins had disappeared. All the luscious fruit was plundered from peach trees that I had watched with jealous care for years. Even the pigs that served me in the disposal of garbage were surreptitiously seized to grace the feast of those who are without the fear of the law before their eyes. Not content with despoiling me of my live stock and farm products, the night marauders invaded my household. I awakened one morning to note the absence of my entire wardrobe, shirts, collars and cuffs included. My watch, diamonds, collar buttons and loose change had gone with the rest of the stuff. Then I put in burglar alarms and slept with one eye open."

"Just as I had become reconciled and was feeling secure they induced me to run for office. You know the rest. I spent $3,000 and didn't get a place in the race. They double crossed me. Now I'm an Ishmaelite. I will neither give nor ask quarter. I've retired, and I have the finest private collection of firearms in this or any other country."—Detroit Free Press.

The Apothegms of Galecardini—1530.

Make as many friends as ever you can, for you never know in what contingency a man may be able to serve you. Hide displeasure. I have often had to seek the aid of people against whom I was thoroughly ill disposed, and they, believing the contrary or at least not being aware of this, have served me most readily.

Unperceived beginnings often open the way to great mischiefs or great success, therefore note everything and weigh well even the most trifling circumstance. On your doing or not doing what seems at the moment a mere trifle often hang things of first importance, so be sure to consider well.

Never hold a future thing so certain, however positively certain it may seem, as not, if you can possibly do it without upsetting your plan, to keep in reserve some course to follow if the contrary should turn up. I have often seen really long headed men, when they have to make up their minds about some weighty business, set about it by considering two or three cases that are most likely to happen and come to a decision on the assumption that one of these cases is sure to come. This is dangerous, for often and usually there arises some third or fourth case which had been overlooked and which your decision will not fit. You had much better, therefore, keep your decision strictly to what the actual necessity of the matter compels.

—John Morley in Nineteenth Century.

How It Worked.

"It works this way," said the agent. "When a burglar tries to open the window, this bell begins ringing and wakes you up."

"Bell rings and wakes me up!" said Popper. "And it will wake the baby too. I don't want it. Take it away. I guess you don't know that kid of mine."—Yellow Book.

Mrs. E. J. Jones and daughter, Mrs. Mattie Allen, both of whom were committed to the Hospital for Mental Diseases from Elko, arrived yesterday morning in charge of their guardian, W. W. Booher and Mr. and Mrs. Harris of Elko. The fact that the patients are mother and daughter and both refined ladies makes the cases peculiarly sad.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

The Demand on Spain for Indemnity is Believed by the Departments Equal to a Declaration of War.

At the Cabinet meeting Friday, the spirit of warriors was not present, but look where they would there seemed to be no escape from a conflict. Senator Hanna was dispatched to New York to reassure the Wall Street coterie that there would be no war if it could possibly be avoided, but that an indemnity would be demanded of the Spanish Government. This country generally is clamoring for revenge and a settlement of the Cuban question for all time and President McKinley is almost at a loss how to act in order to escape from the embarrassing position in which he is placed. It is claimed that Spain has received official advice that the explosion on the Maine was the result of carelessness of her own crew and was within the ship, and in view of this Spain will decline to recognize any demand from this Government.

The President is sorely worried. He is working eighteen hours a day and looks haggard and worn. Secretary Alger and Secretary Long have both broken down under the strain and it is fully believed that a demand for indemnity is simply another form for a declaration of war.

Four men are detailed as detectives in citizens' dress to remain near the President for fear that some crank in sympathy with Spain or crazed with the prevailing excitement may attempt the assassination of the President.

The Vizcaya has sailed from New York harbor for Havana. She was accompanied through the Narrows by a naval tug and police boat and the utmost caution was taken that no accident should befall her while in an American harbor. An outbreak is anticipated at Havana to-day (Sunday) from the Spanish population. Cries of "Death to Americans" are frequently heard and the taunts and insults offered are becoming more bold and open every hour. Spanish officials express their uneasiness at the situation in Havana and are fearful that should an outbreak occur against the Americans they will be unable to control it. Americans are leaving as rapidly as possible and it is significant that Consul General Lee holds frequent and close consultations with the British Consul-General. The element which is opposed to autonomy and in favor of the return of Weyler is growing rapidly and claims that it will be heard on Sunday.

That State Teachers' Institute

The Gazette of last evening criticizes State School Superintendent Cutting for locating the next State Teachers' Institute at Winnemucca, claiming that the western part of the State is entitled to the institute on the theory that the one of last year was held at Elko. The criticism is not altogether well based from the fact that the great east was favored with recognition last year and in previous years the west has drawn the prize and there is no good reason why the teachers of Central Nevada should not receive a proper consideration geographically speaking, and Winnemucca is considered a central point on the main traveled thoroughfare of the State. It is not our purpose to pull for Winnemucca particularly, but the western towns as a rule claim everything in sight and usually get their full share, but there is such a thing as being a hog. This year the west will doubtless be favored with the political conventions and the various Grand Lodges and a fair division throughout the State of these favors should be the aim of every fair-minded person.

Mr. Cutting is also taken to task for using the State appropriation of $200 or the greater portion of it in arranging for a Mr. Winship to be present at the institute, also Miss Schallenberger of the Stanford University, and it is argued that Nevada has an abundance of talent for an institute without foreign importations.

Mr. Winship has a national reputation as an educator, and as he will be on his way to California at about the date of the institute, Mr. Cutting made it an object for Mr. Winship to change some of his plans and route so as to meet with the Nevada teachers. Miss Schallenberger is also recognized as a prominent educator, in fact one of the foremost on the coast and the State Superintendent believes that the lectures and instructions these two people will give at the teachers' meeting and the benefit to be derived will pay several times over the expense of having them here.

As far as the point made by the Gazette regarding the "State Course of Study," there is nothing to be considered. The State Board of Education after a careful consideration of the opinions of nearly every teacher in the State, have formulated and adopted a course covering text books and methods of teaching, which it is believed will meet the requirements of every school in the State and no changes in its features will be necessary unless it be in a few minor details.

A Significant Inquiry and a Pointed Answer.

The Carson News says: Governor Sadler received the following dispatch from the New York World last evening: "New York, Feb. 25.—Gov. Reinhold Sadler: What in your view would be the duty of the President should the Court of Inquiry find destruction of the Maine due to Spanish treachery? Should we not exact freedom for Cuba rather than money indemnity? How many men could your State furnish in thirty days on call of the President? Kindly telegraph at our expense."

To-day the Governor replied as follows: "CARSON, Feb. 26, 1898.

"To the New York World.—If the destruction of the Maine is due to Spanish treachery I should consider it the duty of the President to demand ample indemnity and apology and in case of refusal of both or either demand, declare war against Spain.

"We should recognize the independence of Cuba at this stage, regardless of the result of the investigation of the Court of Inquiry. Cuban independence is one thing; the destruction of the Maine another.

"Nevada can furnish a thousand men, drilled and equipped in a week. Whenever the Government becomes imbued with the spirit of humanity and recognizes the inalienable rights of man, as promulgated in the Declaration of Independence, in its consideration of the Cuban question, Nevada will furnish its full quota of men for any emergency that may arise.

"REINHOLD SADLER."

A Pythian Sanatorium.

Congressman John S. Little of Arkansas has introduced House bill No. 6488 providing for a lease from the Government to the Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias of a section of land about 470 feet square from the Government Esplanade at the City of Hot Springs, Arkansas, the same to be used for the purpose of erecting and equipping a National Pythian Sanatorium and bath-house to cost $250,000.

Grand Chancellor W. D. Jones of this Domain has issued an official circular under seal asking for an expression of the several lodges concerning the proposition and that our Senators and Representatives in Congress be requested to give the measure their favorable consideration.

It is understood that the Government will be fully secured on the lease of the land asked for and the proposed buildings will be an ornamental as well as a valuable improvement.

Did Eve Use a Fan?

It is highly probable that Eve slowly waved a green palm leaf or some feathers in the Garden of Eden, for a fan is a very necessary adjunct to the toilet and conquests of woman. Fans are heard of very early in the world's history.

In Egypt fans were used in religious ceremonies, made of parchment or feathers.

The Romans used a circular form on occasions of state and the Greeks made fans of the flat leaves of the lotus.

The Japanese and Chinese have from periods of great antiquity used fans of all possible varieties.

Queen Elizabeth had as great a love for pretty fans as she had for gowns and had a large collection of them.

Mme. de Pompadour encouraged fan painting and also collected fine specimens of the work. Greuze, Watteau and other great artists did not disdain to lend their talents to the art. These pictures were done mostly on vellum or chicken skin.

Ready to Report.

At a public meeting, called at the request of a number of citizens for the purpose of listening to an address by Hon. Francis G. Newlands on the subject of "Town Improvement," held on Wednesday, November 24, 1897, in pursuance of a resolution, a committee was appointed by the chairman to consider ways and means and report at some future day on the best methods to be pursued in carrying out the suggestions of Mr. Newlands. This committee is now ready to report, and a meeting is hereby called at the Court-house on the evening of March 1 (Tuesday), 1898, for the purpose of hearing the report.
